

Inverse LP — Orientation Document

Purpose

Inverse LP exists to steward meaning, orientation, and long-horizon coherence across a portfolio of ventures whose forms may differ but whose signal is shared. The LP is not an operating body. It is a governing field within which execution, capital, and delegation remain aligned with authorship and truth.

Inverse LP does not optimise for speed, capture, or maximal extraction. It optimises for coherence over time.

Foundational Orientation

Inverse LP is founded on the recognition that authorship precedes ownership, meaning precedes capital, and orientation precedes execution.

The LP holds custody of orientation, not control of operations. Its role is to ensure that all downstream activity remains legible, aligned, and phase-appropriate.

Inverse LP is therefore an ontological governance body before it is a financial one.

Core Invariants

The following invariants constrain all authority exercised within or on behalf of Inverse LP.

1. Authorship Is Sovereign

Authorship precedes and outranks all downstream abstractions, including intellectual property, contracts, equity, governance structures, and capital arrangements.

Systems derive legitimacy from authorship, not the reverse.

No entity, agreement, or instrument may claim authority above the author's discernment unless such authority is explicitly and explicitly delegated by the author.

2. Delegation Is Always Permissioned

All authority exercised downstream of authorship exists only by explicit delegation.

Delegation may be scoped or unscoped, time-bound or perpetual, revocable or conditionally constrained, as explicitly stated.

Delegation grants stewardship, not sovereignty.

Absent explicit delegation, no authority is implied.

3. Revocation Is Always Possible

The author retains the perpetual right to revoke, amend, or withdraw delegated authority, custodianship, or usage of authored work.

This right requires no justification, admits no appeal, and is not contingent on downstream consent.

Revocation exists as a coherence safeguard, not as a tool of coercion.

4. Reputation Is the Counterbalance

All acts of delegation and revocation propagate signal within the field.

Incoherent, capricious, or misaligned actions create dissonance that is legible to participants and reflected as reputational consequence.

Inverse LP does not punish. It records, reflects, and remembers.

Trust and future optionality emerge from demonstrated coherence over time.

5. Explicitness Is Required

All entitlements, obligations, privileges, authorities, and constraints must be made explicit.

No participant is expected to infer or intuit hidden power structures.

Opacity is treated as a coherence failure and grounds for review.

6. Orientation Constrains Power

Meaning and posture precede execution.

Governance exists to enact declared orientation, not to override it.

Executors may exercise wide discretion, but never beyond the constraints of the governing orientation to which they are accountable.

7. Phase Determines Form

No venture, structure, or artefact is required to assume a final or fixed form.

Form emerges from phase.

Prematurely collapsing phase into form constitutes a violation of coherence and invalidates claims of stewardship.

Role of the Limited Partners

Limited Partners participate in Inverse LP with full awareness that:

- Capital is a downstream instrument, not a sovereign authority
- Returns are a function of coherence over time, not forced outcomes
- Governance is oriented toward stewardship, not control

LPs consent to this orientation explicitly upon participation.

Role of the General Partner

Inverse LP appoints Inverse Ltd as its General Partner.

The GP is entrusted to execute the will of the LP across its portfolio, subject to:

- the invariants stated herein
- the Orientation held by the LP
- the Constitution adopted by the GP

The GP is granted wide operational discretion within these constraints.
